Fluids and Fibres: Osteopathy's Spirit and Matter

Andrew Taylor Still, DO, the founder of osteopathy, espoused a healing philosophy with a spiritual premise. He believed that human life is created through reciprocity between celestial and terrestrial influences, creating both form and function in the physical realm. We can observe this fundamental principle in the structure and operation of the human organism. We can use this principle of reciprocity to explain how the tissues are put together, how they work, and what we consequently feel—the primary respiratory mechanism. This lecture will explore, in detail, “the mechanism,” as Rollin Becker liked to call it, examine its structural composition, and search out its spiritual origins, as evidenced by the Intelligence it displays.
